Representatives from Bluegrass Community and Technical College reported on work at the campus at Fourth and Newtown. The new building at the corner will be ready for classes at the opening of the Fall term. Buildings to be renovated for future use are the Administration facing Fourth, the McGowan, the indoor basketball court, the maintenance, the mule and the corn crib. These buildings are considered to be historically and architecturally significant and important for future use. The college has purchased the property north of Loudon along Newtown and will renovate it for adult education classes.
